300 ARE DEAD; LOSS MILLIONS

Fearful Cost of Minnesota-Canada Border Blaze.

NINE SMALL TOWNS BURNED

Searching Parties Over Devastated Area Find Many Bodies and Starving Survivors—Wild Animals Joined Exodus.

A. K. Stauning, publisher of the Warroad, Minn., Plain Dealer, says he was sure that the number of dead in the forest fires along the border would be at least 300, and 700 persons are missing. Five thousand are homeless. Mr. Stauning has been keeping in close touch with occurrences of the past few days and his word should be an authority.

He places the estimate of the timber and building loss at $25,000,000.

Men who have just returned from Baudette say the list of dead in the district back from the railroad track will reach 150.

The mayor of Baudette says that seventy-five bodies have already been found, and refugees coming in every hour report having seen many dead bodies in the road.

The situation around Warroad is not critical at present. A big fire is burning between Warroad and Sprague, but the town is well guarded.

All settlers in the district bounded by the Rainy river and Lake of the Woods on the north to twenty-five miles south of Fort Frances, Ont., and from Spooner and Baudette, Minn., on the east to Warroad, on the west, who are not accounted for, are believed to be dead, as there was no known means of escape for them.

For a distance of fifty miles from Baudette and the Rainy river west to Warroad the woods were a solid mass of fire Sunday.

The fires have wiped out the villages of Baudette, Spooner, Swift, Gracetown, Pitt, Cedar Spur, Roosevelt and Malcolm. The last two named places are small settlements in Beltrami county, south of Warroad.

The greatest property loss occurred at Baudette and Spooner, which is practically one community, being paralleled by a narrow river. The other towns consisted of only a few small buildings.

Search For Dead and Dying.

The terrible results of the forest fires are beginning to be realized by the disheartened and homeless thousands.

Bodies found along the railway track three miles west of Baudette were taken to Rainy River, Ont., for burial. There was not a particle of clothing left on any of them, save parts of their shoes. The bodies had the appearance of having been baked in a red hot oven.

Searching parties were organized and went south to relieve suffering and pick up the dead. It will be days before all the dead can be reached, owing to the great trees which have fallen over the roads. These will have to be chopped away before wagons can get through.

In some instances houses near town are filled with refugees who are without food.

Matt Hendrickson came in from his claim, three and a half miles southwest of Baudette, and told of thirty persons who were housed in his shack without food.

He says "when the fire struck his place sixteen of them got into a dry well eighteen feet deep and remained there, nearly suffocating from the heat and smoke, until the fire had passed.

While the tornado of fire passed over the well it veered to the southeast of his house, which was not consumed.

Many settlers got into the Rapid river and saved themselves by wading into the water, although their faces were blistered by the heat.

Delaware Gets Silver Service.

The state of Delaware, next to Rhode Island the smallest commonwealth in the Union, presented a silver service to the dreadnought which bears her name, one of the largest battleships in Uncle Sam's navy.

The shining silver service, said to be the finest ever given a man-of-war, and valued at $10,000, was presented to the big vessel by Governor Pennell, acting in behalf of the state. Captain C. C. Gove, commander of the Delaware, made the address of acceptance.

Persons of prominence from all parts of the tiny state, officials of the commonwealth and their wives were assembled on the deck of the big seafighter. Patriotic societies had delegations there, laden with gifts for the sailors, who received them in grinning appreciation.

The dreadnought, which is lying in the Delaware river, near Wilmington, reflected the spirit of the occasion.

After Captain Gove's speech of acceptance a stand of colors, the gift of the Delaware branch of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was given to the ship by Mrs. Cornelius Taylor, state regent.

A portrait of Commodore Jacob Jones, of Delaware, commander of the Wasp during the famous fight with the Frolic in the War of 1812, was presented by Mrs. John M. Wilson, president of the Delaware Society of the War of 1812.

A portrait of Commodore Thomas MacDonough, of Delaware, the "Hero of Lake Champlain," from the Colonial Dames, was presented by Mrs. Charles R. Miller, president of the Delaware society.

Mrs. Eugene Dupont, through Alexis I. Dupont, presented a portrait of Admiral Samuel Francis Dupont, of this state, who served with distinction during the Civil War. Captain Gove accepted all these.

Largest Corn Crop in History.

The production of spring wheat, as estimated by the crop reporting board for 1910, was 233,475,000 bushels, compared with 230,823,000 bushels in 1909, the yield per acre being 11.8 bushels, compared with 15.3 in 1909.

The production of all wheat for 1910 was 691,769,000 bushels, compared with 737,189,000 bushels in 1909, the yield per acre being 14.2 bushels.

The corn crop was 80.3 per cent of a normal on Oct. 1, or at time of harvest, as compared with 73.3 a year ago, and 88.4, the ten-year average according to the crop reporting board of the department of agriculture.

The crop of corn, based on these figures, was variously estimated at 2,985,000,000 bushels to over 3,057,000,000 bushels. In either case a new high record would be established, the largest previous crop having been 2,927,416,021 bushels in 1906.

The production of oats for 1910 was 1,096,396,000 bushels, compared with 1,007,353,000 bushels in 1909.

The production of barley for 1910 was 158,138,000 bushels, compared with 170,284,000 bushels in 1909.

Dup Up $1145 in Garden.

A pot of gold was found by Mrs. Ed ward Casey, of Harris township, near South Bend, Ind., in her garden.

She was working in the flower beds when to her surprise a $20 gold piece was brought to the surface. She began digging vigorously, and in a few minutes uncovered a rusty can which contained gold pieces amounting in all to $1145. Some of the coins bore the date of 1855, but most of them were coined in 1880.

The farm was formerly occupied by Henry Casey, a wealthy farmer, who died about twenty years ago. It is thought that he buried the gold for safe-keeping.

Governor Hughes Resigns.

Governor Hughes resigned as chief executive of New York and Lieutenant Governor Horace White was sworn in by Secretary of State Keogh to serve until Jan. 1.

Governor Hughes gave a luncheon in the executive mansion to Lieutenant Governor Horace White, members of the governor's military staff, Private Secretary Treadwell, Military Secretary Crossett and former Secretary Fuller.

Following the luncheon the party went to the capitol, where Governor Hughes formally resigned.

Governor Hughes will assume his duties as associate justice of the supreme court.

Old "Bill" Macabee Dead.

Bill Macabee, the oldest veteran of the United States navy, and probably the oldest surviving sea fighter of the world, died at the United States Naval home, in Philadelphia, where he had been an inmate for thirty years. The death of the widely known veteran, who celebrated his 107th birthday on Sept. 22, was peaceful and painless.

ROOSEVELT UP IN AN AIRSHIP

Scares Pilot by Waving His Hand to Crowd.

WAS UP OVER 3 MINUTES

Colonel Surprised His Attendants When He Accepted Aviator's Invitation—Declared It Was Bully.

Well, the colonel did it, by George. He went up in the air. Like many others, he has succumbed to the temptations of flying. At the Kinlock aviation field, eighteen miles east of St. Louis, Mr. Roosevelt made his first flight with Arch Hoxsey. In a Wright biplane he encircled the field twice and remained in the air three minutes and twenty seconds. When he came down to earth the colonel exclaimed that it was the bulkiest experience he had ever gone through. He hadn't expected to do it.

His Finest Experience.

"It was the finest experience I ever had," he shouted to the crowd of cheering thousands. "I'd like to have stayed up an hour."

He shook hands with Hoxsey, thanking him for the ride, and then he disappeared in a cloud of dust. This was the only one of dozens of interesting things the colonel did. He rushed and whizzed and he waltz just like he used to do. St. Louis folks who attempted to follow his course gave it up as a bad job.

Hoxsey said he had to caution his passenger to keep his hands on the holding rail. On the turns Colonel Roosevelt began to wave his hands at the spectators and the aviator was afraid the "former president's" hands would catch a controlling cord.

When it comes to mixing business with pleasure you cannot surpass the colonel. He made three big speeches, and then motored out to the aviation field.

While he sat in the automobile with Governor Hadley, Arch Hoxsey, who had been flying, came over and spoke to the colonel quietly. The governor introduced them. "I'd like to have you for a passenger," murmured Hoxsey, and the colonel looked about and above. There was no wind and the conditions appeared to be right.

Suddenly he began to remove his coat. He doffed his dusty black sombrero.

"You're not going, are you, colonel?" asked Governor Hadley, anxiously. The colonel looked at him. "By George, I think I will," he answered, and he stepped out of his motor car.

Hoxsey's biplane was nearby, and the colonel had reached it in a jiffy. Publisher Howland and his two sons, Karl and Harold, and Advertising Manager Hoyt rushed over. They couldn't believe their own eyes. "Why, he told us he wouldn't go up," said Publisher Howland.

Was 100 Feet in Air.

The colonel devoted all his attention to Hoxsey and the jiggers that worked the plane. He sat on the left side of Hoxsey. Somebody gave him a cap and the colonel put it on and he was ready for the whoop.

While an old soldier held the machine, Hoxsey tested the engine. He found that everything was all right and gave the signal to let go. The aeroplane rose gently and gradually to a height of 100 feet. As it rose it picked up more speed, and before he knew it Mr. Roosevelt and the aviator were swooping over the heads of the crowd. The biplane descended in a complete circle and made a long loop.

The colonel waved his hands to them, those beneath him. He called to them, but the hum of the motor choked his words. In three minutes and twenty seconds the plane glided back to its original position near the colonel's automobile. The crowd swarmed toward him.

He uttered exclamations that came so fast that you couldn't tell what he was saying. He kept "By George!" and said "fine" at least a hundred times. He was so overwhelmed that he couldn't describe his sensations of being in the air.

"I went up in an American airship," he said, "with an American to handle it. It was fine."

WANTS TEXAS FOR HUSBAND

Millville, N. J., Girl Can't Find a Real Man in Home City.

Governor Campbell, of Texas, has received a letter from Miss Lillian Allen, R. F. D. No. 2, Millville, N. J., asking him to pick out a husband for her.

She says: "I am a northern girl and am unable to find a real man here. I was informed that Texas is the state that has real men, so have taken the liberty to write. I am a music teacher by trade; also a graduate from Millville school."

Increase Homesteads.

To the already large area of about 17,000,000 acres the interior department has added 167,000 acres to the enlarged homestead portion of Wyoming. Under instructions from President Taft the department has withdrawn 57,000 acres of oil land in the state of California, bringing the total of land withdrawn on account of oil in that state up to more than 2,500,000 acres.

PORTUGAL PLANS REFORMED NATION

Star Chamber Methods to Be Abolished.

CLERGY TO BE BANISHED

Royal Family Are Safe at Gibraltar and May Go to England to Live. 1000 Were Killed in Lisbon.

Senhor Costa, minister of justice, announces at Lisbon, Portugal, that the object of the government's policy is to "introduce a pure, progressive administration within the republic and to consolidate on a moral and practical basis the good relations of Portugal with foreign nations."

The government, it is added, will throw wide to everybody the door of education, assure the national defense on land and sea, administer the colonies on a basis of decentralization and self-government, establish a system of justice that will ensure essential liberty to all, abolish the police magistrates, investigate the expulsion of monks and nuns, close the Roman Catholic schools, compel the civil registration of births, deaths and marriages, separate church and state, and strengthen the nation's credit and finances.

Normal business conditions are being resumed in Lisbon. Cheers which greet the occasional passing of a troop of soldiers, headed by a band playing the republican hymn and the universal display of the republican colors, red and green, are practically the only outward evidences of the momentous change. Almost every man, woman and child wears a red and green cockade or red and green ribbons knotted like soldiers' epaulettes. Even the horses and mules are decorated with republican emblems. Nobody mentions ex-King Manuel or the monarchy, either in pity or condemnation. They are topics which have ceased to interest the people, and even the whereabouts of the ex-king seems to be unknown.

The royal palaces of Ajuda and Necessidades are occupied by soldiers, who scrupulously guard the valuables contained therein. The palaces will probably be converted into museums.

Admiral Reis, leader of the revolution, committed suicide Tuesday in the belief that the plans had miscarried and that the republic can was lost. His body and that of Professor Bombarda, whose murder by a military officer precipitated the revolt, have since been lying in state in the municipal chamber, awaiting interment in the national pantheon.

The expulsion of the priests continues. Any seen on the streets are immediately arrested. Civil Governor Leao explains that this is the best means of protecting them from violence.

The members of the Irish Dominican mission, which has flourished here since its foundation in 1815, have also come under the ban. They have appealed to the British legation, but there is no reason to suppose that they will be exempted. A number of Irish nuns will have to go also.

The native monks and nuns have been given the option of staying if they renounce their orders; otherwise they will have to quit. Most of the Portuguese Jesuits will go to Brazil. Some of them will go to England. The state will be greatly enriched by the confiscation of property of the congregations.

1000 DEAD IN LISBON

Revolutionists Are in Complete Control of Capital of Portugal.

The correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung, at Frankfurt-a-Main, Germany, at Madrid, says refugees who have arrived from Vigo, Spain, report the number of fatalities in Lisbon as result of the revolution at about 1000, and that several thousand persons were wounded.

The Lisbon correspondent of the same newspaper says the new government has decreed the dissolution of religious orders, the members of which must quit Portugal within twenty-four hours. Another decree, he says, calls on the clergy to abstain from wearing clerical raiment on the streets so as not to provoke attack.

The censorship at Lisbon has been relaxed somewhat and dispatches are coming more freely from the scene of the revolution. All confirm the earlier reports that the revolutionists are in complete control of the capital and that the infant republic is making progress. The republic has been proclaimed also at many points in the provinces.

A special dispatch says that an insurrection has occurred at Setubal, Portugal, where many troops are quartered. The infantry that had gone over to the revolutionists engaged the royalist cavalry. The casualties are estimated at 500.

100-Year-Old Farmer Dead. Joshua Roselle, a resident of Wyoming, eight miles from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., died at the age of 100 years 6 months and 1 day. He was a farmer and had worked hard all his life, most of the time in the open. Except for a slight deafness his faculties were in normal condition. He enjoyed good health until a few weeks ago, when he began to fail rapidly. He is survived by five sons and one daughter, twelve granddaughters, thirteen grandsons and nineteen great-grandchildren.

Killed by Fall at Funeral. Frederick Fritzmeier, of Philadelphia, ninety-seven years old, was called to Schuylkill Haven, Pa., to attend the funeral of his daughter, Mrs. John E. Elman. After viewing the remains he tottered while descending a staircase and pitched headlong to the bottom. He sustained such injuries that his death soon followed.

MRS. W. H. TAFT.
"First Lady" of the Country Aids Boy Auto Victim.

TAFT AUTO HITS BOY

Struck by Car in Which Mrs. Taft Was Riding, But Not Seriously Hurt.

Mrs. Taft was an anxious visitor at the Salem, Mass., hospital, where William A. Crowell, the six-year-old son of William A. Crowell, of Salem, lies, suffering from bruises and cuts received when he was struck by one of the White House automobiles.

The hospital authorities assured Mrs. Taft that the little boy was in no danger. They said he was merely bruised on the face and arm and that he would be sent home.

The accident occurred on Monday, when Mrs. Taft was returning from Boston.

According to Chauffeur Long, the automobile was running at a moderate speed through the eastern part of the city, when the boy suddenly ran from an electric car track upon the roadway and directly in front of the machine.

Long whirled his steering wheel so that the blow was a glancing one, although the child was thrown against the curbstone and cut and bruised. The automobile was immediately stopped and the child picked up and hurried to the hospital.

KEEP CLOSE GUARD OVER KING MANUEL

Portuguese Suspect Arrested at Gibraltar.

It is reported at Gibraltar that a suspicious looking Portuguese, who arrived direct from Lisbon, has been arrested there, and that since the arrest special precautions have been taken to guard King Manuel.

It is understood that King Manuel altered his decision to go to Villa Manrique in consequence of representations made by Spain. The government at Madrid feared that if he visited there just now his presence would stir up the Spanish republicans.

King Manuel before leaving Portugal wrote to Premier Souza saying:

"I am compelled, owing to stress of circumstances, to embark, but I wish to inform the people of Portugal that my conscience is clear. I have always acted faithfully as a Portuguese and have done my duty. I shall always remain whole heartedly Portuguese. I hope my country will do me justice and try to understand my feelings."

Shot Wife, Mother-in-Law and Self.

A horrible triple tragedy occurred near Millboro, in Bath county, forty miles southwest of Staunton, Va., when Edward Mace shot and killed his wife, mortally wounded his mother-in-law and then ended his own life.

The murdered wife was only fifteen years old and carried a baby in her arms when she was shot. She had left her husband but a short time ago on account of brutal treatment and returned recently to the neighborhood.

As soon as Mace learned of her presence he armed himself with a single barrel loading shotgun and a full supply of ammunition and then secreted himself close by the roadside along which his wife and mother-in-law had to pass.

As they came along the road Mace sprang from the underbrush, and with the remark: "I will fix you both," he shot to death his wife, who held their sleeping infant in her arms.

Reloading the weapon, he immediately turned it upon the mother-in-law with deadly intent, the load tearing a wound in her left side, from which it is thought she will die. Reloading a third time, Mace placed the weapon against his body, pulled the trigger and ended his own life.

There were no eyewitnesses to the tragedy, but the shots and screams were heard from a nearby farm house, the occupants rushing to the scene to find the lifeless bodies of husband and wife and the mortally wounded form of the mother-in-law.

The infant was unhurt and still lay peacefully asleep in the embrace of its lifeless mother.
